> Welcome from the Fyzzo Voyage Advisory Team:
> Every year, thousands of Nigerian students receive unconditional admission offers from prestigious universities abroad, only to have their travel dreams shattered by visa refusal letters. Many student and visit visa refusals are NOT caused by academic performance. They are often triggered by improper Proof of Funds (POF) presentation, unseasoned accounts, and unexplained lump-sum deposits. This blueprint is your ultimate insider shield.

PART 1: The 10 Golden Proof of Funds (POF) Rules

1. The 28-Day Consecutive Balance Rule (UKVI Standard): Your statutory funds (unpaid course tuition plus 9 months living maintenance: £10,539–£10,827 outside London or £13,761–£14,130 in London; the higher figures apply from 30 November 2026, so plan with them) must remain continuously in the bank account for a minimum of 28 consecutive days without dropping below the threshold for even one second. The statement must not be older than 31 days on the date of application.
2. Beware the "Lump Sum Trap": Never borrow money into an account 2 days before generating a statement. Embassies look at the 6-month transaction history. A sudden deposit of ₦30 Million into an account with an average monthly balance of ₦200,000 is an immediate red flag for visa fraud. All lump sums must have documented paper trails (e.g. deed of land sale, company dividend payout, gratuity letter).

3. The OANDA Currency Fluctuation Buffer (15% Rule): Embassies convert Naira to GBP, USD, or CAD using official spot rates (such as OANDA.com) on the exact date of visa assessment. Because exchange rates fluctuate daily, always maintain at least a 15% financial buffer above the statutory requirement.
4. Sponsor Legitimacy Hierarchy: For a UK Student visa, the money must be yours, your parent's or legal guardian's (with their consent letter and your birth certificate), or come from an official financial sponsor such as a government, employer or university. For visit visas, other relatives or companies can sponsor you with a sponsorship letter, their bank statements and proof of your relationship.
5. Personal Accounts vs Business Accounts: For a UK Student visa, business or company accounts are not accepted: the funds must be in a personal account. For visit visas, business owners can show company statements together with CAC documents showing their shareholding, plus personal bank statements.
6. Electronic Bank Letterhead & QR Code Verification: Visa officers can contact your bank to check that a statement is genuine. Always use an official statement from the bank, stamped and signed or digitally verifiable, with the bank's contact details.
7. Tuition Deposit Pre-Payment Advantage: Paying a larger initial tuition deposit directly to the university (e.g. £4,000 – £8,000) reduces the cash balance you need to show in your bank statement, because tuition you have already paid is deducted from the amount on your CAS.
8. Third-Party International Student Loans: If personal funds are tight, explore verified no-cosigner education loans (such as MPOWER Financing or Prodigy Finance for STEM and MBA degrees). For a UK Student visa, an official loan letter can be used if it comes from a government, a government-sponsored scheme or a regulated lender, and meets the visa rules.
9. Supplementary Asset Documents: For visit visas and student permits, submit verified proof of ties: landed property deeds, vehicle registrations, pension fund statements, and long-term investment portfolios.
10. The Master Financial Explanation Table (LOE): Always include a 1-page financial breakdown table in your Letter of Explanation detailing: Tuition Due, Living Maintenance Benchmark, Exchange Rate Used, Bank Account Number, Closing Balance, and Sponsor Relationship.
